GitLab Patch Release: 18.10.3, 18.9.5, 18.8.9

Learn more about GitLab Patch Release: 18.10.3, 18.9.5, 18.8.9 for GitLab Community Edition (CE) and Enterprise Edition (EE).

Today, we are releasing versions 18.10.3, 18.9.5, 18.8.9 for GitLab Community Edition (CE) and Enterprise Edition (EE).

These versions contain important bug and security fixes, and we strongly recommend that all self-managed GitLab installations be upgraded to one of these versions immediately. GitLab.com is already running the patched version. GitLab Dedicated customers do not need to take action.

GitLab releases fixes for vulnerabilities in patch releases. There are two types of patch releases: scheduled releases and ad-hoc critical patches for high-severity vulnerabilities. Scheduled releases are released twice a month on the second and fourth Wednesdays. For more information, please visit our releases handbook (<https://handbook.gitlab.com/handbook/engineering/releases/>) and security FAQ (<https://about.gitlab.com/security/faq/>). You can see all of GitLab release blog posts here (</releases/categories/releases/>).

For security fixes, the issues detailing each vulnerability are made public on our issue tracker (https://gitlab.com/gitlab-org/gitlab/-/issues/?sort=created_date&state=closed&label_name%5B%5D=bug%3A%3Avulnerability&confidential=no&first_page_size=100) 30 days after the release in which they were patched.

We are committed to ensuring that all aspects of GitLab that are exposed to customers or that host customer data are held to the highest security standards. To maintain good security hygiene, it is highly recommended that all customers upgrade to the latest patch release for their supported version. You can read more best practices in securing your GitLab instance (</blog/2020/05/20/gitlab-instance-security-best-practices/>) in our blog post.

Recommended Action

We strongly recommend that all installations running a version affected by the issues described below are upgraded to the latest version as soon as possible.

When no specific deployment type (omnibus, source code, helm chart, etc.) of a product is mentioned, it means all types are affected.

Important notes on upgrading

These versions do not include any new migrations, and for multi-node deployments, should not require any downtime (<https://docs.gitlab.com/ee/update/#upgrading-without-downtime>).

Please be aware that by default the Omnibus packages will stop, run migrations, and start again, no matter how “big” or “small” the upgrade is. This behavior can be changed by adding a `/etc/gitlab/skip-auto-reconfigure` (https://docs.gitlab.com/ee/update/zero_downtime.html) file, which is only used for updates (<https://docs.gitlab.com/omnibus/update/README.html>).

The SLES 12.5 packages for 18.10.3 and 18.9.5 are not present in this release.

Updating

To update GitLab, see the Update page \(/update\). To update GitLab Runner, see the Updating the Runner page \(https://docs.gitlab.com/runner/install/linux-repository.html#updating-the-runner\).

Note: GitLab releases have skipped 18.10.2, 18.9.4 and 18.8.8. There are no patches with these version numbers.
