Bug report

When during address list folding a separating comma ends up on a folded line containing that is to be unicode-encoded than the separator itself is also unicode encoded. Instead the comma should still a plain comma.

This is rejected by some mail servers:

```
ZZZ: host YYY said:
550 Invalid address in message header. Consult RFC2822. (in reply to end of DATA command)
```

Minimal example:

>>> import email
>>> m = email.message.EmailMessage()
>>> t = '01234567890123456789012345678901234567890123456789012345678901@example.org, ä <foo@
>>> m['to'] = t
>>> m.as_string()
'to: 01234567890123456789012345678901234567890123456789012345678901@example.org\n =?utf-8?q?='
